You Can't Take a Balloon into The Metropolitan Museum

by Jacqueline Preiss Weitzman and
Robin Preiss Glasser

A wordless but fun-filled story of a young girl who visits The Metropolitan Museum and must leave her yellow balloon behind.

R.E.D. ZONE!
Read & Do

Read

Before:

Introduce the book and tell the children a little bit about it. Follow that with a comment or question that is related to the story such as, This book is different because it doesn't have any words so we're going to use the pictures and our imaginations to decide what happens. Encourage a discussion so the children can comment, ask questions, and express their feelings. Set the stage for listening by asking an "I wonder" statement based on the cover illustration.

- I wonder what will happen to the balloon if the little girl is not allowed to take it into the museum?

During:

Encourage the children to comment on the illustrations, ask questions, and predict what will happen next in the story. Children gain confidence and a sense of achievement through being able to correctly predict how a story will end.

After:

Discuss the story. Ask questions…
- Where does this story take place?
- Why do you think the little girl isn't allowed to take her balloon into the museum?
- Why do you think the man ran after the balloon and didn't let it just float away?
- List as many of the types of art that the little girl saw while she was in the museum as you can remember.
- Do you see things in the pictures of the balloon and the people chasing it that reminded you of the art the little girl looked at?
- How do you think the man in the blue suit feels after chasing the balloon all over the city? Explain your answer.

Do

Make Real-life Connections

Show the children a book with pictures of famous works of art. Let each child choose a work of art and tell the class about something in real life that the work of art reminds the child of.