
Web Sites for Read-Aloud Stories

On this page you will find Web sites that you can visit to find some stories to read aloud.

Note: All of these sites were operational at the time that this book was printed. As with any Internet activities, be sure to supervise children if you allow them to have access.

Tales to Tell

<http://www.thekids.com/kids/stories>

This site has fables and stories from around the world.

Online Children's Stories

<http://www.uclagary.ca/~dkbrown/stories.html>

This site lists many other Web sites that take you to more reading for children.

Carol Hurst Children's Literature Site

<http://www.Carolhurst.com>

This site lists recommendations from picture books through young adult novels. Summaries and activities are given. Although it is geared to teachers, parents will also find information here.

Cyber-Seuss

<http://www.afn.org/~afn15301/drseuss.html>

This site leads to Dr. Seuss stories. It includes information about the author.

Multicultural Book Review

<http://www.isomedia.com/homes/jmele/homepage.html>

At this site, multicultural literature is reviewed by readers who submit reviews.

Reading Rainbow

<http://www.pbs.org:80/readingrainbow/index.html>

This site lists the titles that are shared on this popular read-aloud show. For each book a summary and an activity are given.

Children's Literature Web Guide

<http://www.ucalgary.ca/~dkbrown/index.html>

This site not only lists award-winning books but also provides links to other sites. Not only can you choose a story or book but also, in some cases, you will be taken to the text of that story.

Candlelight Stories

<http://www.CandlelightStories.com>

This site has a variety of stories you can print out and read aloud to your child. Some are wonderfully illustrated. There are also links that will take you to many other literature and reading-related sites.

Read Me a Story

<http://www.visa.com>

Once you arrive at this Web site, click on Read Me a Story. Here you will find some fabulous resources for reading aloud to your child. From favorite stories by the well-known and not-so-well-known authors to tips for reading aloud, this site will enhance the time you spend reading aloud to your child.
